STORMWATER TIP

If you're patient, making "leaf mold" is another way to recycle the fallen leaves on your yard. Just get the leaves slightly damp, poke a few air holes in a black trash bag, and throw them in the bag. In a year or two, the bags will be full of an earthy brown material, which is great for using on your yard and can retain as much as three times its weight in water - making it a great way to absorb rainwater and prevent it from running off your yard.
